Image 3. Another view of the shelter used for testing. This view illustrates the opening to the shelter. The inside of the shelter was lined with orange and red material to increase warmth. The principal investigator tested the shelter for one night and found the shelter to be comfortable and warm.